Casey Mulligan is a professor at the Kenneth C. Griffin Department of Economics at University of Chicago. His research covers capital and labor taxation, the gender wage gap, health economics, Social Security, voting and the economics of aging. He has received awards and fellowships from the Manhattan Institute, the National Science Foundation, Wolfram Research, the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, the Smith-Richardson Foundation, and the John M. Olin Foundation.

From 2018-2019, Mulligan was the Chief Economist of President Trump's Council of Economic Advisers. His recent book, You're Hired! describes his experience in the White House and on the front lines of economic policymaking.

Mulligan has written widely on discrepancies between economic analysis and conventional wisdom. His other books include Chicago Price Theory, Side Effects and Complications, The Redistribution Recession, and Parental Priorities and Economic Inequality. He has also written numerous pieces for the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, the New York Post, the Chicago Tribune and other outlets.
